

Policy on Covert Operations Vibrational Indicator Direction upgrades

Medical Personnel have put a horrifying concept on the grid, and it involves human bio-markers and electromagnetic intrusions. Removing these weaponised devices from the hands of anyone using them, is where people should be thinking, rather than deploying the arm and fires on these devices.

These devices have been considered lawful under specified use, however, there has been widespread corruption of their use for some time, that has increased to hazard level. These covert armed fires aimed at a person, or business for reasons of harassment, is an offense. Harassment cannot be said to be 'medical inspection' or 'device testing' or 'covert operations'. The license for use will be cancelled and the persons committing this offense will be arrested for sabotage with covert weaponry.

The concept of 'legal use' of these devices is not something that is permissible, as these devices have been developed by methods that are scandalous, cruel, and involve invasive, violent forced human experimentation.

In order to locate the devices, and recognise what device is deploying when and when is a matter that must remain classified until further notice.
